

Jen Adams

COMEDIAN

Jen grew up in NYC on the Lower East Side between the Village and Alphabet City. She hated school and left as soon as it was humanly possible to play hookie enough that her parents gave up on her. She decided to go into the family business when she was 14...A Magic Show. She met and learned from variety artist and circus freaks and now has a plethora of odd talents (fireeating, stiltwalking, tightrope balancing, burlesque, etc...) that very few people want to pay her for...Thank god for stand up comedy. After 11 years in the "variety arts" she has spent an additional 8 working as a Stand Up comedian. You can still catch her doing magic behind bars (the kind you drink at, not the kind you rot behind for being bad) as well as performing her jokes that very few people can relate to but still find very funny.
