

Phil Johnson

COMEDIAN

Phil Johnson isn't angry. Even when he's screaming at the audience in the guise of a schizo killing his girlfriend or a jilted lover insulting every bit of his ex-lover's femininity, it's done with a warmth and a knowing glance that it's all in good fun. It communicates to the audience that no matter what problems they're going through, there's always someone even more screwed up than them. Phil Johnson is, in fact, a raging optimist. And better yet, it's all set to music.

Phil Johnson deftly wields his guitar, spinning out one funny scenario after another. Far beyond the strumming/storytelling and parody style of other comedians his songs are all original, and written to include the music as an integral part of the story. His shows have been called "choreographed frenzy" and his easy, mellow command of the stage turns completely demented on a dime. It's a show with variety, energy, and originality that definitely pushes the boundaries.

With years of experience leading his band Roadside Attraction, a college degree in music, and his activities in film and TV, Phil Johnson knows well what it takes to entertain an audience. But beyond just entertainment, Phil seeks to actually communicate something important... That life is just not as serious as we all think.
