

DAX JORDAN

COMEDIAN

The only child of an original Valley Girl and a Midwestern jazz drummer, Dax has cornered that uniquely loathsome Beatnik/mallrat/trekkie demographic.

Raised on the fruits of the 80's standup explosion, his early exposure to everything from Stan Freberg to George Carlin have ingrained in him a wide variety of styles and perspectives. Often the devil's advocate, but obviously opinionated, he makes his statement by asking questions people are afraid to answer. An ability to tailor the act to crowds from Catholic High School grad parties to Lumberjack bars in rural Idaho to hipsters in downtown Seattle has allowed Dax to take advantage of every opportunity to come his way, including writing jokes for Senator Ron Wyden (D-Or).

Catch this rising star early, before he sells out to long distance carrier commercials.
